

Project Puffin

Wednesday Night 5pm Lecture Series

Summer 2017

JULY

July 5: Sue Schubel, Opening for Art Show, short talk on using decoys for social attraction.

July 12: Aubrey Alamshah, Project Puffin assistant manager, will be discussing her involvement in tracking cobras for the past 6 months in Thailand.

July 19: Steve Kress, founder and director of Project Puffin will be at the center to discuss how climate change is affecting Maine seabirds

July 26: Karen Alexander will discuss the decline of forage fish in the Gulf of Maine and how these changes have affected the rebuilding of seabird colonies.

AUGUST

Aug. 2: Don Reimer will be discussing members of the corvid family, which includes ravens, crows and jays; some of Maine's most intelligent and resourceful birds. Don Reimer will present a photo discussion of this intriguing family, focusing on their unique traits, habits and behaviors that make them so successful.

Aug. 9: Susan Beebe, a local artist, will be at the center to assist and guide participants in making a paper mache birds. This activity is suitable for all ages and all supplies will be provided, including photos of local birds.

Aug. 16: Annie Kassler, local bat enthusiast, will go beyond the myths with a presentation about our winged allies. Bats are superheroes and Kassler's presentation will shine light on how bats world-wide are essential to our planet's ecology and global economies.

Aug. 23: Aubrey Alamshah, Project Puffin assistant manager, will be discussing her involvement in tracking cobras for the past 6 months in Thailand.

Aug. 30: Susie Meadows, Project Puffin center manager and educator, will be discussing how Project Puffin restored seabirds back to the area.

♦ Wine, cheese & light refreshments will be served.
Call to reserve a seat, 596-5566